

Guarding Leader Of Throne Rush Against Himself

Greater Fear of Charles' Suicide Than of Assassination

UPRISING HAS FAILED

Deserted When Cause Was Lost, Allies Debate
His Fate

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Allied governments today instructed Hungary to keep Charles safely in custody pending a decision as to his final disposal.
The Hungarian government was recommended to establish special safeguards. It is understood that the Allied statesmen do not fear attempt at assassination so much as they did that Charles might try to take his own life. He was described in press despatches as being despondent.

Beyond the bare fact that Charles and Zita had been captured about 40 miles from Budapest, following the collapse of the Hungarian monarchist army, the British foreign office was without any details. The Allied statesmen are in a quandary as to what shall be done with the former Emperor. One suggestion was made that he might be given an opportunity to go to South America on condition that he never attempted to return to Europe and has no dealings with any European monarchist agitators.

It is probable that Hungary and the adjoining states will contribute to the cost of exiling and incarcerating Charles.

One of the difficulties in disposing of Charles arises from the fact that he is practically penniless. All his estates in Hungary and Austria have been confiscated. The Allies likely will refuse to furnish any money. A Central News despatch from Budapest said that Charles was deserted by his officers when they saw that all was lost.

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—Former Emperor Charles and his wife, Ex Empress Zita who were captured at Komorn by Regent Admiral Horthy's nationalist troops, are under heavy guard and their escape is impossible said despatches from Budapest today. They probably will be kept at Komorn until the great powers decide upon a future asylum. Charles may be banished from Europe entirely, to prevent further trouble making in the old dual monarchy. Like Napoleon, he may be interned in some isolated spot far from his native land.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—The failure of Charles' monarchist adventure in Hungary has "banished the menace of a new Balkan war" according to the view of the foreign office today. Officials of the foreign office expressed high satisfaction over the capture of Charles and the collapse of the restor-ationist movement.

Diplomatic exchanges are now proceeding between London, Paris and Rome, concerning Charles' future.

Only Two Percent of People Have Imagination--Edison

BY ALLEN T BENSON

ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 25.—"Neither you nor anybody else" said Thomas A.
Edison to me today "can write a self-evident fact so plainly that three percent of those who read it can understand it. On second thought I think I would reduce the number who can understand to two percent."

The interview took place in his laboratory here. When I entered the door and caught sight of him, he was bending over the same desk where I had seen him 15 years ago. His big white head bent down over papers he was studying. He looked up and smiled with the cordiality that every one who knows him will recall.

At my first question he plunged into the interview with all of the remarkable vigor that he puts into his work. Mr. Edison is remarkable not only for his achievements, but for the tenacity with which he clings to the strength of a young man. His father died at the age of 104 and then, only because, as Mr. Edison says, the cells of his body wished to separate and reassemble in some other body. The older Edison, in perfect health, had

Union Chiefs Must Be at Conference

Labor Board Chairman Says
They Must Attend
In Person

MEETING TOMORROW

BY LUTHER A. HUSTON
Staff Correspondent I. N. S.
CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Railway executives and rail union chiefs are assembling here today for the most momentous industrial "peace conference" in recent history.

Tomorrow between 1200 and 1400 officials of the railway lines and of the unions will assemble at the Coliseum annex with the U. S. railway labor board as master of ceremonies and thresh out the controversy that has brought the railroads of the country face to face with a serious strike. The conference, which will begin at 10 o'clock may end in a few hours, or may remain in session several days.

Chairman R. M. Barton of the Labor Board today served notice on the union leaders that all of the executives officers and general chairmen of the unions involved in the dispute must appear at tomorrow's hearing. Replying to telegrams received from W. G.
Lee of the railroad trainmen; W. S.
Carter of the firemen and engineers and various general chairmen throughout the country the board stated positively that all of those summoned must be present in person. It had been reported here that some of the brotherhood chiefs had informed the general chairman that they would not need to come to Chicago.

The board directed the brotherhood chiefs to withdraw any instructions of this sort.

Although the railroad heads and the union leaders will appear in response to an official order from the Labor Board citing them for violation of the board's recent wage cut decision, the conference in reality is an effort by the labor board to make use of its mediatory powers in an attempt to avert the strike. Members of the board have made it plain that they have strong hopes of reaching an agreement that will settle the strike called for October 30.

At Succoth Celebration, Congregation's President Praises Charity

FESTIVAL WAS JOYFUL

The Congregation of Avat Achin held celebration last evening in the synagogue on Pond street, the occasion being the ancient Feast of the Succoth, or "Feast of the Tabernacles."

A cordial invitation had been extended on behalf of the congregation to the Hebrews of Bristol, to attend the festival. The edifice was, as is customary on this hallowed occasion among Jews, lavishly decorated with autumn fruits and harvest emblems.
There were about 100 guests present.

During the evening there were several speakers and some entertainment.
A repast was served.

Among the speakers was Louis Dries, president of the Congregation.
Mr. Dries reviewed the good work accomplished during the past year.
He told the members that they were entitled to a jollification because they had been exceedingly liberal and generous with their donations for charity.

"In proportion to our number here in Bristol, we can be classed among the most charitable of Jewish communities in the United States," he said, in complimenting his fellow members of the congregation.

Mr. Dries went on to tell how they sent, each month, their donations to the war sufferers and how they were aiding in the maintenance of institutions for consumptives. He urged the members to continue their good work and generous donations. "Charity will never make a man poor," said Mr. Dries.

The Rev. Baron, who is the Rabbi of the Congregation, dwelt upon the religious spirit of the Bristol Hebrews. "I have the highest regard for all of you members of our race," he said. He urged them to take even a greater interest in their synagogue than they do at the present time.

Joseph B. Singer, who is the treasurer of the charity funds, told of the money he had collected from the Hebrews of Bristol during the past year.
Mr. Singer said that, while it required considerable of his time to collect the money, yet he was willing to give even more time to this work if necessary. "My time could not be better employed," he said. "I am always willing to do my part." He was liberally applauded.

A stirring appeal for the Zionist movement was made by Benjamin Sliber, who directs the ways and means of raising money for the congregation and for its charitable enterprises.

Mr. Sliber urged liberal contributions toward the Zionist cause.

Alley Fence Fire Caused Early Morning Excitement
When a fence abutting on an alley that runs from Mulberry to Walnut streets, between Wilson and Wood streets, was discovered to be afire early this morning, there was some excitement in the neighborhood. Hot ashes set the fence to smouldering. It is in the rear of the property occupied by Harry Stradling, on Mulberry street. Several boards were ablaze when the fire was discovered. Chester Loudenbough extinguished it with a bucket or so of water.

What If the Loan Is Rejected?

Sixth of a Series of Bulletins Issued by the Bristol School Board to the Taxpayers.

To the Public:—

As promised last week, the school board will try to answer the question, "What can be done to relieve the situation in the schools, if the proposition involving a bond issue of $150,000 with which to erect a new school building is rejected at the polls?"

It will be remembered that eight departments in the lower grades are on short time. It will require four additional rooms to place these departments on full time. In consequence, it would seem that the first thought should be given to evolving a plan whereby relief for these departments could be furnished.

Four other grade departments are located in the two firehouses. These accommodations, however, are not permanent, the rooms having been offered to the board as a temporary arrangement to relieve the congestion. Just how the firemen would view the proposition to permit the use of the rooms permanently, or for a term of years, is not known. The whole question would have to be reopened, and the rights of the firemen, the sacrifices they have made and the inconveniences they are suffering should receive proper respect and consideration.

In the subject of the high school, the most serious problem presents itself. As stated in one of our previous bulletins, grade departments can be housed anywhere without loss to the pupils, but the character of the high school and the methods of teaching make it imperative that the high school should remain intact.
Should the enrollment in the high school next year reach two hundred pupils, which is quite probable, the board would be confronted with a very serious situation.

For years, our local high school has been able to take care of the few pupils from the surrounding rural districts who desired a high school education, their tuition expenses being paid by the districts from which they came. This year our limit in accommodations has been reached and next year, if the expected increase in the enrollment is realized, we shall be obliged to refuse admittance to these pupils from the outside and will be obliged to send the excess pupils from Bristol, those who cannot be accommodated in the local high school to some high school outside of Bristol, and pay for their tuition.

We fear that a great many of our citizens, those who take no interest in the operation of the schools, are inclined to look upon the subject with less seriousness than they should. Some have even said, "Rent outside buildings." Listen a moment, all such uncomprehending persons; renting and equipping outside buildings for school purposes is somewhat costly. Take for instance, the schools located in the hose houses, they are being operat-

Miss Bertha Hilton Now Operating Wonderful
Wireless

OPERATES RADIOPHONE

Miss Bertha Hilton, who formerly presided over the Western Union telegraph office in Bristol when it was located at Market and Radcliffe streets is now officiating as an expert operator on a radiophone set for which experts claim a closer approach to perfection than any in use. The set is the invention of Horace A. Beale, Jr., an amateur wireless enthusiast of Parkersburg, Pa.

Mr. Beale is president of the Parkesburg Iron Company. His father was owner of the old Hibernia Iron Works.
Mr. Beale claims to have spent about $50,000 in the pursuit of his hobby in the wireless line. Miss Hilton is a native of Parkersburg and came to Bristol from there when she accepted a position with the telegraph company.

The radiophone set uses four fifty-watt radiotrons or vacuum tubes, two modulators and two oscillators, with 1,500 volts of direct current—transferred to high frequency, when it is no longer dangerous—on the plates with the inventor's own secret form of modulation. It is compactly built in a small cabinet.

The radiophone may be used for either key or voice, and each night between 8 o'clock and 8.30 o'clock Mr.
Beale's phonograph "concerts" may be heard throughout the United States and Canada.

The power plant, on the first floor, comprises a motor generator and three motors, one specially designed by Mr.
Beale. The long antenna is 185 feet above the ground and 350 feet long.
The short antenna is 105 feet at the upper end, 35 feet at the lower and 100 feet long. The steel masts were raised in sections by a steeplejack.
The station occupies part of the second floor of a garage.

is made.

Auto Tag Changers Won't Be Safe Here

Chief Sackville Instructs Force To Watch For This Illegal Practice

USED TO CLOAK CRIME

The practice of changing automobile licenses, which, as in other places has become a glaring evil and has encouraged and shielded crimes in which the automobile has played a part, is due for a stamping out in Bristol.
Chief of Police Sackville has issued a ukase against it and has instructed his officers to apprehend any offender whom they detect.

He takes his authority from the latest edition of the motor laws of the state, which is just off the press.
The statute under which Chief Sackville will act is as follows:—

"Any person or persons using registration plates on a motor vehicle other than that motor vehicle or which the registration has been issued shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than one hundred ($100) dollars nor more than five hundred ($500) dollars, or to undergo imprisonment not exceeding one (1) year, or both, at the discretion of the court; and the clerk of the court in which such conviction is had shall forthwith certify such conviction to the State Highway Commissioner, who shall suspend or revoke the license issued to such person, and no other license shall be issued to such person for a period of one year following such suspension or revocation."

Liberal exception is made, however, to cover those who change licenses legitimately, and Chief Sackville quotes further from the new issue of the motor laws, as follows:—

"If the licensee has made application for transfer of his license and can show a receipt from a notary public certifying that he has made such application, prosecution for the transfer will not be made."

Boys Victims of Accidents While Engaged in Play

Mishap

NONE SERIOUSLY HURT

Two Had Eyes Injured and Two Were Hit by Autos

There has been a series of juvenile accidents within the past seventy-two hours which have resulted in injury to three boys living in the Edgely and Tullytown sections.

Edward Hilgendorff, five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hilgendorff, of Headley Manor, met with a serious accident while playing in the yard of his home.

Hilgendorff along with a companion Victor Rockhill, was digging a hole in the yard. The Hilgendorff boy had a hoe and as he struck the ground the hoe hit a piece of rock which flew into his eye.

The lad ran screaming to his mother. He was hurried to a physician who advised that he be taken to the Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, at once.

The boy's mother today said that there was slight hope of his regaining the sight of the injured eye.

Clinton Moon, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Moon, of Tullytown, is also suffering with a severely injured eye. The lad was playing with his skatemoon on the concrete highway, a short distance from his home.

An automobile driven by a stranger was traveling in the same direction as the youngster, when young Moon suddenly turned directly in the path of the machine, according to the chauffeur. The lad was struck by the front wheel and mudguard and tossed a distance of ten feet.

Moon was bruised and one eye was badly injured. Physicians attending the lad said that it would require at least twenty-four hours to determine the extent of the injuries.

Walter Schaefer, aged 14, of Edgely, was struck by a large motor truck on Saturday while riding his bicycle along the Bristol pike.

The lad was riding down the pike in front of the store of John McGuire.
Two large motor trucks were coming in the opposite direction when one turned out in an attempt to pass the other. It was the rear truck that young Schaefer failed to notice until it was upon him. He was not seriously injured.

Raymond Wright Recovers Car Stolen And Abandoned

Raymond Wright, of Wright Service Garage, Bath and Otter streets, is in a happy frame of mind today over the recovery of his Hudson seven passenger touring car, which was stolen on Wednesday last, in Philadelphia. Mr. Wright went to the 29th Police District, 22nd Street and Hunting Park Avenue, Philadelphia, yesterday, identified his car and brought it back to Bristol last evening. The car had been found abandoned in the Roosevelt Boulevard section.

It was in pretty good condition, though it had no doubt been used for joy riding by its thieves and abandoned when out of gas, or needing some other replenishment or repair. The battery was run down, to replenish which would have necessitated taking it to a charging station and risking its identification as a stolen car.

There were two spare tires, tubes and rims missing from the car but it was otherwise intact. It is Mr.
Wright's private car. He left it standing at the curb while he went into a drugstore at 17th and Norris streets to 'phone, and when he came out, not more than five minutes or so later, it was gone. Mr. Wright says the thieves were undoubtedly experts in their line.

This is the third car Mr. Wright has had stolen. The other two were both recovered.

Funeral of Mrs. Vanzant Held In M. E. Church

The funeral of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Vanzant, who died early Saturday morning, was held in the Methodist Church yesterday afternoon. The services were attended by several members of the church, where the deceased had long been a member and a faithful worker.

Members of the Methodist choir sang selections. Mrs. M. D. Weagley presided at the organ and the Rev. J.
J. Bingham preached the funeral sermon. Rev. Bingham paid touching tribute to the character and faithfulness of Mrs. Vanzant, who for so many years, was a devoted church worker.
There were several floral pieces. Burial was made in the Methodist churchyard.

A LOSS TO THE COUNTY

When Norman E. Garber relinquishes his work as County Farm Agent, after the first of next February, he having lately placed his resignation in the hands of his superiors, Bucks County will suffer a distinct loss. The agricultural community will miss him very much, for he has loyally, industriously and intelligently served them. It is seldom that a man takes such an interest in his task as has Mr. Garber.

Mr. Garber deserves the thanks of the county for his excellent work. He has thrown himself into it, heart and soul, discouraging as the work was in the missionary days, and has brought about a unity of spirit and a new attitude among farmers of the county toward progressive agriculture.

A capable successor will, it is said, take up his work, and is said to be already on the ground and familiarizing himself with the work Mr. Garber has accomplished and with Mr. Garber's methods.

Nevertheless, the successor will have to be exceptional to surpass the achievements of Mr. Garber as farm agent. He will have a high standard of work to live up to, but will, thanks to his predecessor, have a well organized agricultural community to work in.

Mr. Garber's work as county farm agent has been so notable as to attract the attention of leading agriculturalists and agricultural educators of the state and nation.

Mr. Garber will take with him, when he leaves for his Lancaster county farm, on which he will practice the high ideals of the farming profession he has inculcated into Bucks County agriculturalists, the best wishes of the entire county. Especially will he carry the good wishes of the Courier, for he has always co-operated with this newspaper to the fullest extent in its endeavor to keep in touch with and serve the agricultural population of Bristol township and contiguous territory.

BIRTH CONTROL IN PROSPECT

The foremost English advocate of birth control has arrived in the United States, and, judging by the list of those who indorsed her theory by welcoming her enthusiastically, we may expect a vigorous, national propaganda to restrict procreation. It is not improbable that advice will be given with such resonant trumpeting that scientific facts and evidence to the contrary will be ignored temporarily.

Statistical records show conclusively that wherever birth control has been attempted it has not only resulted in racial deterioration, but also in appalling decreases in population. They show, too, that the latest born children in families are the most efficient. It would be highly judicious, as a patriotic measure, to counteract the propaganda with positive scientific proof.

TO OVERCOME THE LAW'S DELAY

Attorney General Daugherty declares that 142,400 cases, both civil and criminal, are congesting the Federal courts. The criminal dockets comprise 50,000 cases, still to be heard, while there are 92,400 civil cases. In order to expedite court action, he asks Congress for authority to appoint eighteen additional judges.

There can be but insufficient force to the law if it is restrained from taking course. Justice should be swift. The law's delay tends to diminish respect for both the law and justice. Eighteen additional judges would, no doubt, be able to reduce the number of cases considerably, and they should be appointed. But it would be well, too, to give serious consideration to technicalities and court practices which retard the disposition of cases.

ADVERTISING PEACE

At the Press Congress of the World in Honolulu, Mr. Riley Allen, editor of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, suggested, in an interesting address, that the vast amount of money which is expended yearly for war-ships, cannon and machines and instruments of destruction should be diverted into advertising channels. By exploiting disarmament for a year, he said, the governments would do more effective work for universal peace than by constructing steel-clad leviathans.

Casually, the suggestion, though unique and interesting, is not impressive. It seems, on first consideration, to be preposterous. Advertising would animate popular sentiment for a comparatively brief period as a sensational innovation, and when the fervor of excitement had warmed to the cooling point—as it frequently does, the scintillating bubbles of variegated light would explode and leave the prospect dark again. But the idea is not as fantastic as it appears to be. The benefits would not be ephemeral, but enduring.

Such a radical modification of international policy as the restriction of appropriations for military purposes cannot be brought about by silence and inertia. Statesmen and politicians unquestionably cherish the wish to reduce the taxation burden, the great size and weight of which are due to the extravagance and waste of war and preparedness, but their will is paralyzed by the absolutism of custom and the dread warnings of zealous militarists, and they are afraid to go forward except under compulsion.

Limitation of armament, leading gradually to virtually complete disarmament, can be brought about only by education and propaganda. Statesmen and the people must be reminded constantly of the brutal horrors of war. The ultimate state of an international court, with a police force at its command, to settle disputes and preserve the peace, must be depicted as a practical ideal. Intelligent advertising would not only educate both governments and peoples to the necessity of disarmament, but would assert the irresistible force of enlightened and determined public opinion.

Continual propaganda, and propaganda is publicity, is the principal means whereby the presumptuous spirit of militarism will be controlled and the affluents of international trust and friendliness vitilized to achieve universal harmony.

FEDERAL PATERNALISM

Representative Alice Robertson of Oklahoma is criticized severely by proponents of the maternity bill, which is now pending in the House, because she is opposed to Federal supervision of domestic affairs and the creation of remunerative positions in a new bureau. She need not worry about the vindictiveness of the denunciation heaped on her. The time is not far distant when her stand for principle will be the criterion applying to all proposed legislation of this kind.

It is not only desirable that the government should abandon wartime paternalism and practice extreme economy, but also that it should let the home alone as much as possible. If parents cannot solve their family problems, they can appeal to their city or county, their church or their lodge.

Reports from Washington indicate that opposition to the maternity bill is growing. Miss Robertson is quoted as saying that the opposition would be still more determined if the women of the country were familiar with all provisions of the measure.

HUMAN INTEREST ITEMS
GATHERED ABOUT TOWN AND ITS PEOPLE

He had just been married and the other evening as he heard what sounded like a serenading party coming, he made a hasty exit from town. He ran, so they say, all the way down Otter street, and outside of the borough limits.

After a considerable lapse of time he turned to Bristol, only to learn that the serenading party was escorting another newly-wed through the streets and that they never had had any intention of calling upon him.

At this season of the year when housecleaning is in order some men are bound to show just how little they know about certain household duties.

The other day one obliging husband volunteered to put up the stove pipe for his wife. It had been taken down last spring by this careful wife. She had stuffed it with newspaper and then wrapped it in paper and put it away for the season.

The husband carefully unwrapped the pipe, but neglected to take the newspapers out of it before placing it in position. When the wife attempted to make a fire she had quite some difficulty and when the man of the house returned from his employment he found the house filled with smoke and the fire refusing to burn.

The wife questioned her hubby on what he had done when he placed the pipe in position and soon learned that the pipe was stuffed with paper. It was quickly removed.

There would be no hard times if everyone had the spirit of "Jigger" Watson. He's the happiest guy in town. Sunshine or shadow, it's all the same to John.

Daniel Spangler, Jr., is one gunner in town who eats but little of the much game he kills. "Dan" is generous and although he delights in fishing and gunning, he often gives away that which he catches or shoots.

OBSERVATIONS

Another big bluff—Sinn Fellers' claim to have an army of 250,000 ready to take the field.

Slowly, but surely our citizens of German blood are learning that America is spelled with a "c" not a "k."

Notwithstanding the almost general use of motors, there are many "dead horses" in business.

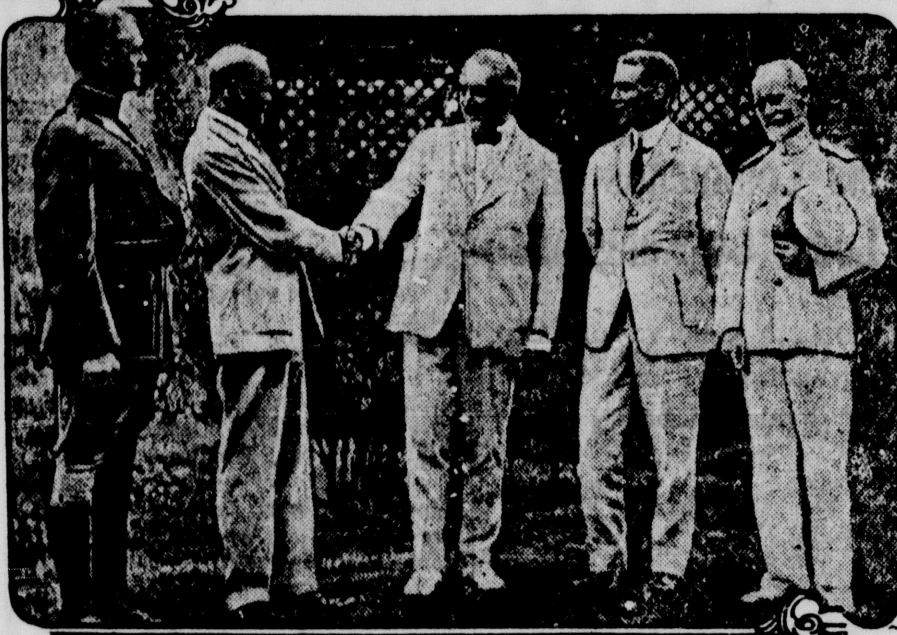

Judge Fisher, of Chicago, did not mince words in expressing his opinion of would-be muzzlers of the press.

Gen. Len Wood promises Filipinos honesty, economy and efficiency, but does not mention independence.

"Recently one of our patients, who had been in the hospital a long time,

JOHN BARTON PAYNE,

became possessed with a desire to have a pocketbook similar to one he had noticed the Red Cross man had, and he dwelt upon it so incessantly that we laid aside everything else and went ashore and purchased one for him.

"It happened to be on a pay day and we had drawn his pay and delivered it to him. He kept it in his pocketbook until night and then gave us the money to send to his mother, to whom he knew we were writing each day. It was the last service we could render him, for that night he 'shoved off' for the long voyage from which no man returns."

CHILDREN WILL SEND CHRISTMAS GIFTS ABROAD

School children in the Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross, which includes the states of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Delaware and Maryland, are now busy making their share of the 100,000 Christmas boxes to be sent to the children of Central Europe, 68,000 of which will be distributed in Vienna, 33,000 in Budapest and 1,000 among the children of the Balkan states.

Specially made boxes, bearing the Red Cross symbol and a brief Christmas greeting on the cover have been prepared to hold the handkerchiefs, wash cloths, stockings, toothbrushes, soap, dolls, marbles, tops, sweets, or whatever the children care to put into them. Each box is provided with an addressed postcard to be used by the recipient to acknowledge the gift. They will be shipped from New York next month to assure arrival in ample time for distribution Christmas Day.

In the midst of this work, the Juniors are not neglecting to make preparations for the coming Fifth Annual Roll Call of the Red Cross, which will be held in the period between Armistice Day, November 11, and Thanksgiving Day, November 24.

He remembered sauntering up the opposite canyon to duly call upon this inventor-physician one day, and his delight upon finding a well-read, music-loving, philosophic, erratic man, who had at once recognized a kindred spirit, and who had made the younger man warmly welcome.

Presently, on the first call, an enchanting little girl in a shabby smock had come in—a little girl all dimples, demureness and untouched boyish beauty. She had said that "Anne wath mad wiv her, and that Alix—" she managed to lip the name, "wath' up in the madrone!"

A somewhat older child, named Alix, a freckled, leggy little person with enormous front teeth, had proved the claim by falling out of the madrone, and had received no sympathy for a bump, but a—to him—rather surprising censure. He had yet to realize that nothing ever hurt Alix, but that she always ruined her clothes, and frequently hurt other persons and other things. He found her a spirited, enthusiastic little person, extremely articulate, and quite unself-conscious, and she had entertained him with an excited account of a sex feud that was being pushed with some violence at her school, and had used expressions that rather shocked Peter. A quiet third girl—a niece, he gathered—had joined the group, a girl with brains and clean hands, who elucidated:

"Alix and I don't like our teacher!"

"She's a sneak and a skunk!" Alix and frankly contributed. Cherry, now quietly established in her father's lap, and smiled with mischievous enjoyment; nobody else, to Peter's surprise, had paid this extraordinary remark the slightest attention. He remembered that he had fancied only the smallest of these children, and had been glad when they all went out of the room.

Looking down at the cabin, the years slipped past him like a flying nim, and it was the present again, and Alix—Alix was gone.

He roused himself, spoke to the dog, and they went on their way again. Mud squelched beneath Peter's boots in the roadway; the dog sprang lightly from clump to clump of dried grass. But when they left the road, and cut straight across the rise of the hillside, the ground was firmer, and the two figures moved swiftly through the dark night. The early stars came out, and showed them, silhouetted against the sky above Alix's beloved Tamalpais, the man's erect form with its slight limp, the dog following faithfully, his plump tail and feathered ruff showing a dull luster in the starlight.

Cherry, with her violet eyes and corn-colored hair, Cherry, with her little hands gathered in his, and her heart beating against his heart, and Alix, his chum, his companion, his comrade on so many night walks under the stars—he had lost them both. But it was Alix who was closest to his thoughts tonight, Alix, the thought of whom was gradually gripping his heart and soul with a new pain.

Alix was his own; Cherry had never been his own. It was for him to comfort Cherry, it had always been his mission to comfort Cherry, since the days of her broken dolls and cut fingers. But Alix was his own comforter, and Alix might have been laughing and stumbling and chattering beside him here, in the dark, wet woods, full of a child's happy satisfaction in the moment and confidence in the morrow.

"Alix, my wife!" he said softly, aloud. "I loved Cherry—always. But you were mine—you were mine. We belonged to each other—for better and for worse—and I have let you go!"

He went on and on and on. They were plunging down hill now, under the trees. He would see a light after a while, and sleep for a few hours, and have a hunter's breakfast, and be gone again. And he knew that for weeks—for months—perhaps for years, he would wander so, through the great mountains, with their snow and their forests, over the seas, in strange cities and stranger solitudes. Always alone, always moving, always remembering. That would be his life. And some day—some day perhaps he would come back to the valley she had loved—

But even now he recoiled in distaste from that hour. To see the familiar faces, to come up to the cabin again, to touch the music and the books—

Worse, to find Cherry a little older, happy and busy in her life of sacrifice, not needing him, not very much wanting the reminder of the old tragic times—

An owl cried in the woods; the mournful sound floated and drifted away into utter silence. Some small animal, meeting the death its brief life had evaded a hundred times, screamed shrilly, and was silent. Great branches, stirred by the night wind, moved high above his head, and when there was utter silence, Peter could hear the steady, soft rush of the ocean, dulled here to the sound of a gigantic, quiet breathing.

Suddenly she seemed again to be beside him. He seemed to see the dark, animated face, the slender, tall girl wrapped in her big, rough coat. He seemed to hear her vibrating voice, Suddenly She Seemed Again to Be Beside Him.

with that new, tender note in it that he had noticed when she last spoke to him.

"I'll go home ahead of you, Peter, and wait for you there!"

Tears suddenly flooded his eyes, and he put his hand over them and pressed it there, standing still, while the wave of tender and poignant and exquisite memories broke over him.

"We'll go on, Buck," he whispered, looking up through the trees at a strip of dark sky spangled with cold stars. "We'll go on. She's—she's waiting for us somewhere, old fellow!"

What If the Loan Is Rejected?

ed at the minimum of expense and yet the cost of each building to the board is over $800 a year.

When Mr. Boardman was in charge of the townsite at Harriman, the board requested him to set a price for the use of two rooms in the Harriman school building. He made a proposition which was liberal, offering the rooms at monthly rental of fifteen dollars each and a proportionate share of the cost of operating the building. Nevertheless, the cost of renting the two rooms would have been about $1000 a year and the cost of equipment for the rooms would have been $1000 more.

Most of the expenses of the school board are fixed and permanent, and, in making up the budget, it is possible to figure very close. In consequence, any extra expense taken on by the board must be met by an increase in the tax rate. The board figures, roughly, that every $1000 of increase in fixed expenses means about three cents increase in the tax rate. It can be seen from this that the cost of operating the rooms in the two houses requires close to five cents of the tax rate.

The Lutheran Church, on Jefferson Avenue, very kindly offered us the use of its parish house, but the cost of equipping it as a school house would be so great that the board hesitated about accepting the offer, and has asked the pastor, Mr. Thomas, to let the subject lie in abeyance for awhile.

The laws of the State extend the privilege to the school board of expending two per cent. of the assessed valuation without the consent of the taxpayers. Any expenditure above that amount must first be passed upon by the electors at a regular or special election. Two per cent. of the assessed valuation, less the $24,000 in bonds still outstanding on the Jefferson Avenue building, gives the school board the privilege of expending about $45,000, should the voters at the coming election reject the proposition to float a bond issue of $150,000 for the purpose of erecting a new school building.

Therefore, the question arises, how much could the directors do, and how far could they go towards relieving the situation, through the expenditure of $45,000. It will be remembered that the directors in Bristol Township recently contemplated the erection of a four-room building at Croydon, and the lowest bid was in the neighborhood of $40,000. A new four-room building might be erected in the uptown district, but that would only partially solve the problem, providing the outside rented quarters could be considered permanent.

The board feels that the only proper solution of the problem can come through relief afforded the high school. If the bond

—M. and Mrs. A. W. Dodson, of Radcliffe street, left Bristol yesterday for Palmerton, Pa., where Mr. Dodson has a position with the State Highway Department. Mrs. Dodson will remain there for a week or so. Mr. Charles Dodson, their son, also has a position with the State Highway Department.

—On Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Elias of Radcliffe street, entertained the following friends at cards, Mr. and Mrs. James Sayre, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Havens, Mr. and Mrs. Fairbairn Gilkeson, Mr. and Mrs. E. Tanguay, Mr. and Mrs. S. Parker Chase, Mr. and Mrs. George H. William, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert K. Bean, all of Philadelphia.

—The Harriman School will give an entertainment on Thursday evening in the School auditorium. Three sketches will be given, "An Old-Fashioned Proposal," "A New-Fashioned Proposal" and a "Fairy Story." There will also be music and recitations. The entertainment will be for the benefit of school organizations.

—Last Saturday night, the Bristol Sons of Veterans gave an oyster and chicken salad supper and dance at Cornwells. Among the many Bristolians present were: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Trude and family, of Bath street, Mr. Albert Gilbert and Miss Jessie Gilbert, of Bath street, Miss Margaret Smith of Bath street, and Miss Louise McCoy, of Cedar street.

—Mr. Edward Mariner, of Pond street, celebrated his 74th birthday on Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. F. Hendricks, of Cedar street. Those who were present at the birthday dinner were Messrs. William and George Mariner, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hughes and daughter Evelyn, from Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cramer and daughter Myrtle, of Maple Shade; Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hendricks and sons, Robert and Elwood, of Burlington; Mrs. Edward Hendricks, of Springside and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hendricks and family.

issue proposition is defeated at the polls, the board will undoubtedly approach the subject from this angle. Just what can be done is a question.

The real solution of the problem is now before the people. A new school building to relieve the congestion permanently is badly needed. The taxpayers must decide the matter at the polls next month. Should the proposition be defeated, it is impossible to say definitely just what can be done. Some plan may be evolved that will give temporary relief, or it may be necessary to come before the people again, as other towns have done.

Suppose the board should use the $45,000 available, and erect a new four-room school house in the uptown district. The four rooms in the Jefferson Avenue building and the two rooms in the Washington Street building, now on the short time schedule, could be placed on full time, but no relief could be given to the Bath Street school, where two rooms are on short time. Should this plan, which is both unwise and uneconomical, be carried out, and the fire companies consent to the use of their buildings for a term of years, it would mean this: An increase of 15 cents in the tax rate to cover the cost and operation of the new four-room building, 10 cents additional increase to take care of the increase in teachers' salaries, and probably 5 cents more to cover the new arrangements made necessary in the high school. A total increase of 30 cents in the tax rate, with little to be gained thereby, and the proposition set back for a few years, to come up again in more alarming proportions.

Public affairs should be administered the same as private affairs, and the problems which arise should be studied in the same careful manner. The school board after a thorough review of the school situation, believes, as it has stated before, that from the standpoint of economy and efficiency, the only correct solution of the problem would be the providing of additional accommodations in a central location, so that the older scholars can be brought together, and the Jefferson Avenue, Washington Street and Bath street buildings be used for the younger children alone. The adoption of this plan would solve, at one time, both problems which are now worrying the board. It would relieve the congestion in the third ward as well as in the second and fifth wards, deal out justice to all sections of the town, provide additional rooms for future expansion of the schools and give the high school the opportunity for development which is now an imperative necessity. But apparently this plan could only be carried out by the erection of the proposed new combination grade and high school building.

The questions which have arisen are serious. Bristol is not alone in its troubles. Other towns are struggling with similar difficulties. Morrisville has a school tax rate this year of $2.40 and a per capita tax of $4.00, and still lacks sufficient school accommodations.

The local board has been trying for the last six weeks, through its bulletins to the public, to cover every phase of the school situation, that the citizens might understand and cast their votes with a full knowledge of the seriousness of the situation. If the proposition to be voted upon at the polls in November is rejected, the board must continue its policy of cooperation with the people, until a plan is evolved which shall be acceptable.

The passive scenic beauty of China is in strong contrast to the active cruelty of which her people are sometimes capable, as Gouverneur Morris reveals in his latest Eminent Authors photoplay, "A Tale of Two Worlds," which was made at the Goldwyn studios.

The story begins in China during the Boxer uprising in 1899. In this native rebellion, a young American girl has lost her parents and their priceless collection of Chinese porcelains and jewels. The girl is brought to America by a Chinese servant and reared as a Chinese.

Involved in the plot is the quest of the jeweled sceptre of which it had been said "that it is bathed in the tears of women and the blood of men."

During the unfolding of the story, the lovely girl learns the truth of the sceptre's motto; but in the end, she finds peace and happiness, as well as her real identity, through the courage and the cleverness of an American lover.

"A Tale of Two Worlds" is gorgeously mounted and splendidly directed by Frank Lloyd. It will be shown at the Forrest Theatre tonight for the last time.

Goldwyn Pictures will be shown all this week at the Forrest.

Only Two P. C. of People Have Imagination—Edison

put anything over. If the people of the U. S. had imagination they could understand the first time they were told and be ready to act at once.

"If only two percent can understand" Mr. Edison was asked, "what chance is there for self government?" "Not a chance on earth," he replied. "We have no self government."

"We have government by a little group of men, most of whom are lawyers. You know what Herbert Spencer said about governments. He said the average intelligence represented by governmental acts was lower than the intelligence of the least intelligent member of the government. That explains a lot of things about governments."

Mr. Edison was asked if human intellect had gained anything in power since the days of the greek philosophers.

"I think it has gained a good deal in power," he replied, "The Greek philosophers were pretty blind. Almost everything we have today was before their eyes but they could not see much of anything. The lath was looking at them. The turbine was staring them in the face. The internal combustion engine that is being so wonderfully developed today could have been almost as easily by the ancient Greeks as it was by us. It is astounding how long things can remain right in front of us and not be observed, or at least not understood."

Humboldt said it was a standing reflection upon science that it did not understand and therefore could not explain the passage of force between two ends of a horseshoe magnet. It is just as much of a reflection upon us that we do not yet know how a bird sustains itself in the air without flapping its wings."

road systems of the country met here today in a preliminary council, to map out a common plan of procedure at the hearing. The heads of the big four brotherhoods and the switchmen, it was said would come into the meeting with their plans already perfected at conferences in Cleveland. No definite program has been formulated by the labor board, so far as could be learned today. The hearings will be open and the covenants that may result will be "openly arrived at."

Will Coordinate Efforts to Help Nation's Jobless

To Colonel Arthur Woods, former Police Commissioner of New York City and at the close of the war Assistant to the Secretary of War, charged with helping to re-establish service men in civil life, has been assigned the complex administrative task of coordinating the efforts and interchanging the ideas of the Mayors' Emergency Committees recommended throughout the country by the President's Conference on Unemployment.

President Harding described as follows the bureau of which Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce and Chairman of the Unemployment Conference, named Colonel Woods head:

"In order that there may be unity of action by all the forces which may be brought to bear, whether governmental or private, the unemployment conference is establishing an agency in Washington through which appropriate co-ordination can be effected, and through which reports on progress and suggestions may be given general circulation and cooperation. I trust this agency will be supported in this endeavor."

Thirty-one Mayors' Committees were formed within four days after the President's appeal

Detroit and Boston Mayors In Fight To Conquer Unemployment Evil

ANDREW J. PETERS JAMES COUZENS

Andrew J. Peters, Mayor of Boston, and James Couzens, Mayor of Detroit, were two members of President Harding's Unemployment Conference who helped to work out the plan of municipal emergency action toward relieving the situation which threatens with regard to unemployment this winter.

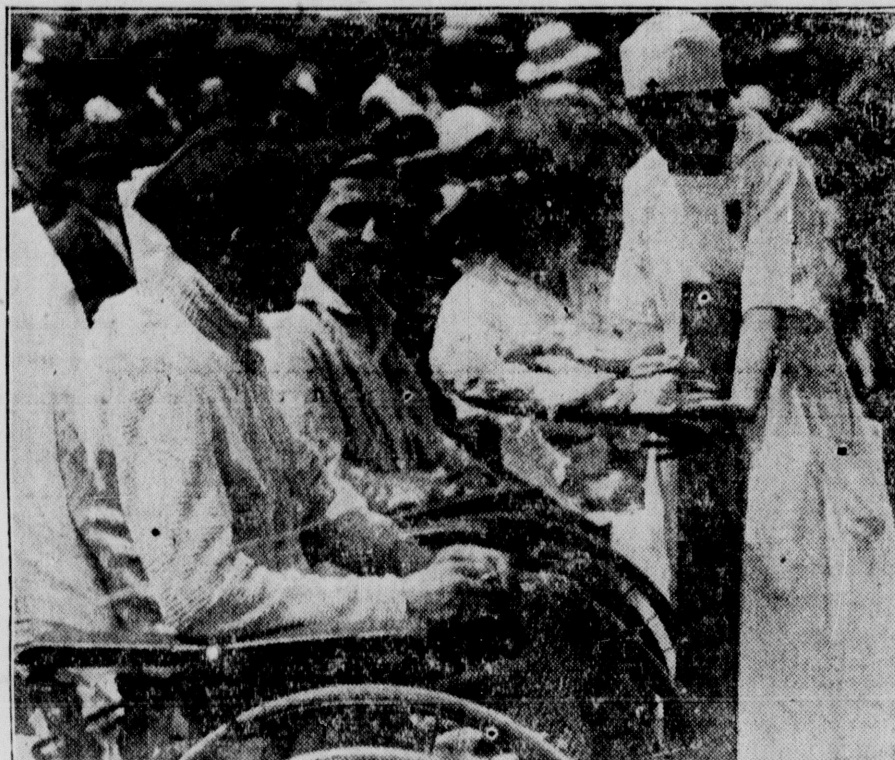

Each of them left the conference in its early stages to put the plans in operation in his own city and each of them has accepted membership in a hold-over committee which will be at the service of every community that heeds President Harding's appeal for nation-wide action.

Colonel Arthur Woods, former Police Commissioner of New York and later Assistant to the Secretary of War, was asked by Herbert Hoover, chairman of the conference, to remain in Washington during the period of the emergency and, under the Department of Commerce, head the work of co-ordinating municipal effort.

"Cities and towns must be relied upon for immediate attack upon the emergency," said the report of Colonel Woods' committee. "Whatever is done must take place in local communities and the citizens of such communities are the ones responsible and capable of seeing that the necessary measures are carried out. This but repeats the first principle of American life, reliance upon local initiative and obligation."

However, the full benefit of the experiences of scores of communities now at work are available for any cities entering the fight. Mayors and members of emergency committees are invited to communicate with Colonel Woods.

Editor Courier:

Sir:—

You will recall that not so long ago the Robert W. Bracken Post of the American Legion was sadly in need of funds to defray the expense of a military band at the funerals of our returned comrades.

Although we never made any personal solicitation, your paper took up the matter and brought our cause before the community. The result was very successful and we feel greatly indebted and want to thank you for all that you have done.

It gives us great pleasure to realize that the press is behind our organization and we hope that we may be of service to you upon the first opportunity.

Very truly yours,

Red Cross Gives $310,000 to Aid 'Clean-Up' Drive

An appropriation of $310,000 for Red Cross work in connection with the "clean-up" campaign instituted by the Government to bring the claims of all disabled service men who are entitled to Federal aid before the proper government bureau for action, has been made by the American Red Cross. The Executive Committee of the American Red Cross in making the appropriation authorized the appropriation of $35,000 of this sum to the American Legion to defray the expense of the Legion representatives assigned to the various districts of the Veterans Bureau.

The remainder of the appropriation was authorized for apportionment among the several Divisions of the Red Cross for carrying on that part of the "clean-up" work that falls directly upon the Red Cross organization.

Young America Sends Vast Relief To Needy Abroad

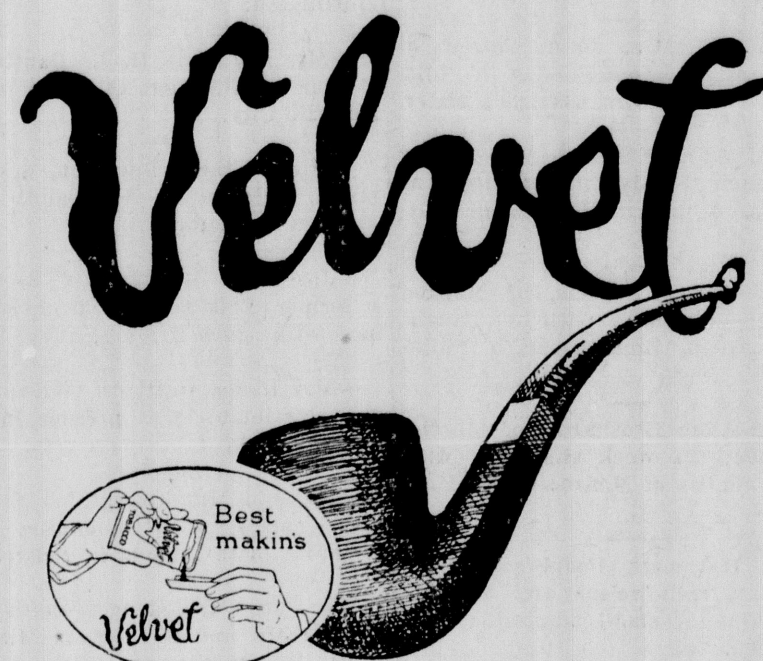

Various relief projects of the Junior American Red Cross in European countries resulted in helping 237,000 destitute children during the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of the American Red Cross for that period. The growth of the activities of the Juniors abroad is manifested by a comparison which shows this figure is 200,000 larger than that of the previous fiscal year.

The National Children's Fund raised by school children, members of the Junior American Red Cross, was drawn upon for $420,557 for these projects. Receipts for the National Children's Fund during the last fiscal year totalled $155,317.
